CLIMATOLOGY

The 2006 harvest was normal, without temperature or precipitation extremes. The grapes were healthy, allowing for a stress-free harvest at the precise moment of maturity, which took a bit longer due to initially high levels of acidity. The wines stand out for their fresh fruit, great color and structure. An excellent year.

SOIL

Soils of fluvial and alluvial origin. Very deep clay loam, with the presence of small rounded clasts at different depths. Moderately acidic pH, with very low fertility.
